"Impact of COVID-19 On Education Sector "*Miss. Swati V. Dhonde(Kale)Assistant Professor Asian College of Science and Commerce
Suvidha Amber, Narhe, Pune.ABSTRACT :-

The world is facing the biggest crisis today due to coronavirus(covid19) pandemic The coronavirus, which started in Wuhan (China), has spread to developed and underdeveloped countries, state, city, rural and urban areas are facing the biggest public health issue because of the corona pandemic. In India the first case of covid 19 infected was reported in kerala on 27th january 2020. One of the 20 year Old female .That lady presented to the emergency department in general hospital Thrissur, Kerala, Then at the end of march 2020 this virus spread into all states of india. In India february march is time of annual, summer examination for 10th & 12th standard and UGC also, that students face lots of problems some of the positive and some of the Negative impact also because of covid 19. Researchers want to find out the negative and positive impact of covid 19 pandemic on the education sector in indian as well as other countries. For this research paper researchers would use primary as well as secondary data. And help to find a supportive solution on the negative impact of the same.

KEYWORDS :- pandemic, academic year, Teaching learning, Covid-19, Lockdown, Online education, WHO

INTRODUCTION :-

The COVID-19 pandemic has affected educational sectors worldwide, leading to the near-total closures of schools, universities and colleges. As of the end of March 2021, approximately 1000 million teachers and learners are currently affected due to schools and colleges closures in response to the pandemic. In addition, the WHO states that the corona virus is less likely to be deported and that it is a virus similar to AIDS. The epidemic of corona virus has also changed the way millions of people around the world are educated. In an Article, the WHO states that the corona virus is a small amount possible to be deported which it's an endemic kind of like AIDS. The epidemic of corona virus has conjointly modified the approach a lot of individuals round the world square measure educated. In rising countries wherever education is primarily provided by the government, it will become a rife and consequential trend for future education. This epidemic is additionally a chance for students to create selections during this unsure world, to create conversant selections, to solve problems in an exceedingly constructive means, and most importantly to adapt to things wherever skills ought to be learned. to confirm that these skills are going to be elementary for all students, flexibility should be developed in our educational system 6. There's a great deal of confusion within the education system of India and students are unable to follow regular educational routines. Against the backdrop of this emergency and considering the safety of scholars and their instructional issues, most of the establishments have taken initiative to facilitate telecommunication, Skype call, Zoom application and alternative virtual choices to scale back the space ineducation. It's coaching students and teachers to use virtual lecture rooms and technology to facilitate the exchange of information1. Without doubt, this can be an awfully important time for college students. Therefore, the objective of the theme is to scale back the pressure on the scholars and facilitate them to use their time in an exceedingly useful means while not compromising on quality.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY :-

Research methodology has used primary and secondary both.

- The primary data were collected using the survey method with the help of structured questionnaire.
- Secondary data were collected from the book, journals and website.
- Area of the study: The study is conducted in maharashtra.
- Sampling Technique: Convenient Sampling method was used.
- Sample size: The sample comprised 50 respondents.

only applied when results exceed certain established tolerance or allowable level or standard. This is especially true of practical information.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, effectively communication can be a very useful tool when it comes to confrontation. At the work place, confrontations do occur; that is no surprise! However, effective communication can put many of these issues to bed if used properly. In a stressful situation, an effective communicator will be able to defuse the situation. This applies not only to aggressive confrontations but also to conflicts of interest. The effective communicator will lay out the positives and negatives of both options and gather everyone's opinions on the situation. This not only provides a majority decision but also a calm resolution to a problem.

Technology has come a long way, and as easy as it is for us to communicate with people, it is just as hard to understand. For example, face to face communication is not as common as it once was, therefore, emails and written forms of communication have become more common. Internet services, in conjunction with existing and more widely used communication media, will enable the broadest enhancement of information and communication resources.

Although easily accessible, it eliminates the non-verbal part of communicating such as facial expressions, tone, pitch etc. Although these things seem minor, they are vital to communicating as they relay sincerity, sarcasm, and other qualities of communication. Without this nonverbal form of communication, people are quick to assume and may not always be assuming correctly. In this context, the ability to communicate effectively is an essential quality of a businessman. Through successful correspondence, he leads his business to success. Success of any business lies in effective communication.
